I would like to let you know what it's about and what I did to make it happen! In Close Your Eyes, you play a girl who wants to rescue her lost love from a supernatural town. You have a magical umbrella which allows you to travel all through time to different places. You travel to the future to be with a creature who will love you for a long time. The original story was written by me. The creator of Close Your Eyes. This game was made of passion and love, with lots of blood, sweat and tears. I do not ask for any payment for this work. However if you like the game and are interested to see the game as it is finished and ready to be played, I would love it if you would support the project by donating whatever amount you want! Thank you very much for your support! Battle Buddy: Friend or Foe (BF:FF) is a 3D platformer developed by the indie game studio, Mightycurl. This indie game is to celebrate 2 awesome games; Bastion and Vanillaware's Odin Sphere. While Bastion will influence the story and soundtrack to fit within the themes present in the game, Odin Sphere's gameplay was the inspiration for Mightycurl to make a platformer. Players will have the chance to play as the hero, Stella, who will encounter other humans whose past connects them all together. Stella has a change of heart and eventually joins them to defeat a c9d1549cdd

What's new in Bedfellows FRENZY:

Slipper (Cypripedium sativum) Linnaeus placed this species first in his 'Preliminaria' section as an example of 'Withamiae' because he didn't know from where this plant originated. 'The gilded lady-slipper (Cypripedium sativum) is a scarce, of recent collecting, plant which grows throughout Britain. The name is peculiar, the Lady no, for plants of this family are known to be anything but lady-like.' 'The flowers are July and August, from one, two or four united heads, and grow from one to three inches long, having large leaves like Escholtzia, and a root which continues after flowering. It is found in the same situation as Escholtzia, but its root grows against the trunk of the tree, and its leaves are not so large, nor so mucilaginous as those of the latter species.' From Linnaeus's 18th-Century Species Plantarum Another seed 'Cypripedium' in Linnaeus's 'Preliminaria' record: The gilded Lady-Slipper (Cypripedium sativum), common during July and August in Yorkshire, Westmoreland, Cumberland, Moreland and throughout England, grows in the same situations as Escholtzia; and its flowers are precisely of the same size, whether in single or double florets, two inches long, and staminate in their first year. To have blue rimmed pink flowers with yellow eye balls in July in the middle of the Yorkshire moors far from the sea near Bradford below Healey's road to Huddersfield near to Tossin, this might be the most desirable area for anyone interested in getting to see this rare and unusual plant on a regular basis perhaps to be a summer visitor once again. It is a gorgeous species of Cypripedium or Lady's Slipper and has a long history in wildflowering folklore in Britain, Europe and even North America. For colourful displays of frothy white or pink flowers and papery bracts very similar to Escholtzia 'Rubber Plant' and many now forget that this species has been commercially cultivated for horticultural purposes for over 30 years. It is easy to identify in your garden, as with its striking white flower-heads it can look similar to
