fair enough, i dont need to use text often in a book, but when i do especially for titles, which i want to look just right its just painful doing it in fundy, while itsas effortless as youd expect it tobe in smartalbums. i contacted fundy about this twice in the last 14 months and both times they advised i built pages using text in photoshop and import them in. theyve admitted its not good enough and promised itll be improved,but not until the next major (i.e.paid) update to the app. im already invested in fundy, having bought the whole suite and got used to using it to the fullest over the last few years. i really want to have more reasons to use smartalbums 2 i love the look of the interface, the timeline layout approach, the sorting bins, the album proofing, and the text tool, but dont like the fiddly custom layout tools, the album proofing fee, and the lack of a built-in blog collaging option. fundy gives me the same ease of use, with the added bonus of powerful and intuitive custom layout design, and blog collaging from the same pool of images. i like the feature of inserting an existing photo template or page that youve created. if youve created a custom page (layered file) or a chapter page in a different app like x-cite, you can simply upload the page and youll see it show up in the designer. then you edit the layout as you wish, save your changes and it will be applied to the page. then you save it as a template and you can share it with others. you can also edit the template when you install it on other devices, but it wont have the changes youve made to it on the previous device.
