South Africa is a country that attracts millions of tourists every year. South Africa is one of the best places to go on a safari, and there are a variety of different activities that you can do there. There are also some great wine farms to visit and there are many national parks, and ancient ruins you can visit. In the city of Cape Town there are restaurants that serve authentic South African cuisine. The economy is driven by tourism, mining, agriculture and manufacturing. Mining is the biggest industry in South Africa. Mining companies are mostly national or multinational companies. Some of the major companies include Anglo-American, BHP, Debswana, Glencore, Kumba Iron Ore and Rio Tinto. South Africa is one of the richest countries in the world. It was the very first country in which apartheid was founded. With the apartheid policy, the white people in South Africa were separated from the black people. While this was happening, the socialist government of South Africa was thinking of taking away the farmland that used to belong to the white people. Their priority was to make black people work on the farmlands. The best example of South Africa's economic success is the country's tourism industry. The tourist business has been going very well. The famous Kruger Park has been as busy as ever. The mass numbers of tourists who come to Cape Town and Durban for their beach vacations is a true testament to the prosperity that has been created in the country. The manufacturing sector and the local economy overall are in good condition as well. The country has nearly zero unemployment rates (at least since the early 1980's). The unemployment rates in the agriculture and mining sectors are almost the same as that of the rest of the country.
