Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a device which allows for adjusting the cut-off frequency of a linear variable capacitor, and more particularly to a device which allows for automatic adjustment of the cut-off frequency of a linear variable capacitor according to the degree of wear of the insulating housing. 2. Description of Related Art Currently, the primary technique for utilizing a linear variable capacitor for circuit power frequency control is to employ a capacitance control device that adjusts the cut-off frequency. The cutoff frequency is a frequency at which a filter with the linear variable capacitor operates, and the cutoff frequency is adjusted by changing the ratio between the effective capacitance and
