It is an add-on that allows users to see the contents of a large number of email clients through the browser. Is there any way I can easily enable it in all of my Firefox installations? A: First, the answer on my original question is to use about:config and keyword.install. However, I have found a better method which I will post below. Now, if anyone is looking to install an add-on like the one I mentioned, this is the method I used: It is a simple way to add any add-on installed in your profile to all users. Simply install it like so: Then go to about:config and set: extensions.checkCompatibility.enabled.multidropinservers=false extensions.checkCompatibility.enabled.multidropinservers.response=false extensions.checkCompatibility.enabled.
