

Luke Combs - Better Together

Chorus:

Some things just go better together / And probably always will / Like a cup of coffee and a sunrise / Sunday drives and time to kill / What's the point of this old guitar / If it ain't got no strings / Or pouring your heart into a song / That you ain't gonna sing / It's a match made up in heaven / Like good ole boys and beer / And me, as long as you're right here. "Better Together" was inspired by Combs' then-fiancée Nicole Hocking, with whom he just tied the knot in August (via People). "Better Together" has special meaning for Combs and his new bride. Said the singer to The Boot, "I think there will always be songs about Nicole on all my records." The track was hailed as the next big wedding song with its list of ideal pairings: "Some things just go better together and probably always will, a cup of coffee and a sunrise, Sunday drives and time to kill" (via Country Music Nation). The lyrics have even popped up on decorative signs on Etsy, while the title can be found on Combs' site adorning everything from a coffee cup to an embossed necklace. If a country-lover in your life has a birthday coming up, they've got you covered.
